

Disabilities Health Research Network

Making BC Disability Research a Priority

Greetings!

June is upon us. With it brings World Environment Day, on June 5th, as well as Canadian National Aboriginal Day on the 21st (see links below).

We are looking for volunteers to agree to be profiled under the Member Profile section of our website. This is a great way to share your work with others. If you are interested please send an e-mail to: Member Profile.

Please feel free to contact us at any time with disability resources or feedback you'd like to share. Have a wonderful June!

Warm regards,
Sylvie Zebroff

Publications

Knowledge to Action: A Knowledge Translation Casebook

This series of knowledge translation (KT) cases spans the breadth of CIHR's health research themes and showcases just a few of the diverse and interesting KT initiatives embarked upon by health researchers. These initiatives range from engaging the media in an informed public policy debate, improving patient care and reducing wait times through better collaboration and cooperation, to helping some of the world's poorest children receive the nutrients they need to grow and thrive. This KT Casebook provides valuable insights into the real world of researchers and knowledge-users as they do knowledge translation.

Disability Research

Community Living Research Project

The Community Living Research Project is based in the School of Social Work at the University of British Columbia. In the fall of 2005, the Project began exploring Community Living supports and services for adults (19+ years) in four general topic areas: young adults transitioning from high school, residential alternatives to group homes, non-residential supports, and services for seniors.
